Prayer for Knowing Our Wholeness

Hello, beautiful. This is Jennifer Hadley, and our prayer for today is for knowing our wholeness.

So good.

We place our hand upon our heart. A Course in Miracles calls our heart the altar of God, so we're placing our hand on the altar of God, and we are focusing on love and gratitude.

Love is our true identity, and gratitude lifts us up.

We are grateful to rise above the battlefield, and we are grateful to rise above any sense of lack or limitation whatsoever.

We are putting aside all ideas of lack and limitation, including illness, disease, distress of any kind.

We're opening ourselves to our wholeness.

We're opening ourselves to a full recognition that wholeness is our very essence and nature.

We are grateful to surrender thoughts of not enough, thoughts of something's wrong, thoughts of we are bad, we are not good enough, we are being punished.

All of these kinds of thoughts, we let them fall by the wayside.

We let them be healed by that Higher Holy Spirit Self.

Our own holiness is reminding us of our wholeness.

Wholeness is the nature of God.

God is all there is.

There's nothing in addition to God or in competition with God, nothing working against God ever in any way.

And so God's nature is wholeness. Therefore, our nature is wholeness because we are part of God, inseparable.

So grateful to remember that this is the truth of our being and to claim our perfect wholeness.

Our perfection is intact.

Our innocence is intact.

Our wholeness is intact.

We're willing to remember it, to recognize it, and to see it reflected back to us in our brothers and sisters.

So we're seeing it not just for ourselves, but for everyone everywhere.

So grateful to allow it to unfold with ease and with grace.

We let it be, and so it is.
